Students from Eastwood School, recently closed when a school levy failed to win voter approval, visited the campus this week as part of a new approach to learning experiences. The children are shown with University students Jacques Morgan and Anne Brediger (backs to camera).

Students file appeal in dismissal dispute

By Linda McMahon

Two students dismissed from a chemistry class Oct. 22 have been granted a hearing before the Student Arbitration Board Thursday to appeal their professor's decision.

Roger Harshfield and Jim Goodwin, both juniors in the College of Arts and Sciences, are filing the appeal in response to an action taken by Dr. Arlo Boggs, professor of chemistry, and instructor in their Organic Chemistry 306 course.

IN A MEMO to Douglas Weigle, chairman of the Student Arbitration Board, Mike Sprague, student vice president of rules and regulations, stated the two students "claim their rights as students have been violated by the arbitrary action of their professor in that he dismissed them from class without proper cause or due process."

Harshfield said they were in the back of the classroom studying for a biology course when they were dismissed from the class.

"Boggs told us to come down and leave our names and tell the dean we had dropped the course," said Harshfield.

He said they went to Howard Shine, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, who, according to Harshfield, sent a memo to Dr. Boggs saying they could be readmitted to class.

"We returned to class on Monday, but Dr. Boggs ignored the memo and would not allow us to remain in class," said Harshfield. At present the students have missed 14 lecture sessions.

"We want to prove that we have done nothing to merit being thrown out of the class," added Harshfield.

However, Dr. Boggs said he noticed at the beginning of his lecture on Oct. 22 the two students reading another text book and conferring over notes in tones audible to him.

HE SAID he then told them to give their names and report to the dean that they had dropped the course.

Dr. Boggs said on Monday when he started lecturing he noticed them sitting in the class, and at that point told Harshfield and Goodwin that they didn't have permission to be in the class.

On Tuesday, Dr. Boggs said the students asked to be readmitted. "I told them they were free to come back as long as there was agreement as to how they would conduct themselves, as far as I was concerned," said Dr. Boggs.

There was disagreement between the professor and the students over the requirements for readmittance to the class, according to Dr. Boggs.

He said it is not likely that he will appear before the Student Arbitration Board; but he will submit a deposition in writing.

The Student Arbitration Board, which is composed of five students appointed by the Student Body Organization, will hear the case and then refer it to the Student Appeals Board.

According to Mike Sprague, members for the latter board have not been appointed; however the Student Code states that the board is to consist of two students, two faculty members and one person appointed by the President. Section 5A of the code states the decision of the appeals board is final, but an appeal to the President is possible.

Files policy statement published

By Terry Cochran
Staff Reporter

A "Statement of Policy and Procedures" regarding student advisement folders, and also student access to such files, was published yesterday by the College of Education.

The clarification of the college's procedures came in the wake of a complaint recently filed with the Student Arbitration Board, in which a student claimed that the right to see his records as outlined in the Student Code had been violated.

THE STATEMENT, issued by College of Education Dean George Elsass, states that each student's program advisement folder is located in room 365, Education Bldg.

Each folder, the statement continues, contains information used to advise students as to degree status and deficiencies, to record approved program adjustments and substitutions, to determine student teaching eligibility and to provide supplementary information in support of teacher certification in Ohio.

Folders are kept for only one to two years after a student graduates.

The rationale for this procedure is that students sometimes request "delayed certification endorsements". That is, a student may teach in Ohio for a short time and then move to another state, asking for initial certification again.

The files are destroyed after this period in accordance with the Student Guide, and also due to lack of space, the statement reads.

REGARDING student access to files, the statement cites four basic points of procedure:

-Any student desiring personal access to his or her program advisement folder shall appear in person at the Program Advisement Office, indicate such request for access, and present identification card to the receptionist.

-The student shall be given his or her program advisement folder and shall be able to personally review it and the contents therein in the presence of a representative from the Program Advisement Office.

-Should a representative of the dean's office such as the assistant dean, assistant to the dean, or the records analyst not be available immediately, the receptionist shall schedule an appointment for the student at the earliest mutual time for both parties.

-Should the student desire a copy of any of the materials included in the record, such can be obtained at actual cost incurred for providing the reproduction.

Doug Weigle, chairman of the Student Arbitration Board, said he personally was pleased with the new access procedures in the college.

He said students are required to be in the presence of a representative of the Program Advisement Office when reviewing their files in order to insure that no one "slips stuff in or out of his folder."

He added that the complaint filed with Student Court on the personal access issue has been withdrawn.

Center awaits funds

Computer action stalled

Officials from BGSU and the University of Toledo decided yesterday no further action will be taken toward establishing the proposed Northwest Ohio Regional Computer Center until the $2 million needed for the project is reallocated by the state legislature.

In 1969 the Ohio General Assembly allocated the money for construction of the center to be operated jointly by the University and TU, but when negotiations deadlocked over choosing a site for the center, the state controlling board withdrew the funds.

PRESIDENT Hollis A. Moore Jr. said he is still "optimistic on getting the appropriations."

Last June, Owens-Illinois Inc. of Toledo agreed to donate land in its Lewis Development Park near Perrysburg for construction of the center. Before the offer, the two schools had proposed six sites as possible locations for the center, but neither would agree to the other's proposals.

Raymond H. Mulford, chairman of the Owens-Illinois Board of Directors, said it is an "ideal site" because it is situated halfway between Toledo and Bowling Green.

The location is suitable to both schools, according to Dr. Moore.

Dr. Moore said architects have determined what each school would need for a computer center if it were built at the Owens-Illinois site.

Although the central data and storage equipment would be located at the center, each school would have terminals which would be connected to highspeed teletypewriter terminals over long distance telephone lines to the central data equipment. This would enable each school to use the equipment on its campus.

A POTENTIAL use of the center could be computer-assisted instruction, probably modeled after a teaching system developed by the University of Illinois.

The equipment could also be used to solve graduate thesis problems or to aid in research projects sponsored by government or industry.

Over the summer the University doubled its computer capacity on campus when it acquired a computer from Ohio State University.

TU agreed at the time of purchase the computer would be taken over by the regional computer center if it is granted its reappropriations from the state.

Moore, Bryan visit Chilean president

By Chris Flowers
Staff Reporter

President Hollis A. Moore Jr. and Ashel Bryan, member of the University's Board of Trustees, had an unexpected hour-long meeting with the Marxist Chilean president, Salvador Allende, during their return trip from a two-and-one-half-week Brazilian visit.

"We had expected ten minutes, but ended up talking with Allende privately for an hour," Dr. Moore explained.

Allende is the first Marxist leader elected by popular vote in the Western hemisphere.

DR. MOORE said he believes he and Bryan were allowed to see Allende as a political move to balance Fidel Castro's visit to Chile.

Because of Chile's recent nationalization of United States owned copper mines, they said U.S. investments in Chilean industry had dropped from $750 million at the time of Allende's election to $50 million.

Moore said although the mine nationalization took place after Allende was elected, the move toward nationalization began earlier.

Bryan and Dr. Moore said Allende seemed to be trying to stress that this is the first time that a communist government has gained power in this hemisphere without revolution.

ALLENDE has proposed many plans to solidify his position since there is the feeling among many Chileans that he will be overthrown eventually, Dr. Moore said.

"One of his goals is to move his country toward his proposed changes as quickly as possible to insure that the changes won't be reversed after his term," Dr. Moore explained.

He said Allende's goals depend a great deal on developing Chile's higher education system.

"I was disturbed to find the universities swept up in partisan conflict. They were holding student and faculty elections—similar to Faculty Senate—and everything centered on whether or not Allende would have a majority of supporters," he said.

BRYAN SAID university presidents in Chile are elected by vote of the university's students, faculty and staff.

Dr. Moore said Allende wanted them to believe that he was diligent about maintaining academic freedom.

Nationalism is very strong in Chile and if Allende's proposals fail, the country faces possible military take-over from the right or revolution from the left, Dr. Moore said.

University to expand S.A. exchange plan

The University will begin work "right away" on an expanded exchange program with the Catholic University in Sao Paulo, Brazil, according to President Hollis A. Moore Jr.

President Moore, who just returned from a two-and-a-half-week visit to South America, said yesterday he has already contacted other administrators within the University to study the feasibility of several changes in the exchange program.

Speaking at a press conference yesterday afternoon, the president said he hopes to see the program expanded to give a greater number of University students the opportunity to study in Brazil.

THE PROGRAM presently includes a one-quarter student teaching assignment which gives Bowling Green students a chance to work in an English-speaking school in Brazil.

"I'm afraid it may become nothing more than an English-speaking ghetto experience unless the program is enlarged to offer students exposure to Brazil's culture," Dr. Moore said.

He said he would like to see an increased number of students involved in the exchange program, possibly expanding it to include interested students from areas other than education.

One possible change would be to increase the stay in Brazil to one year. However, students would have to be able to speak Portuguese to handle such a program.

"If students were proficient in the language, they would also have the opportunity to study at Brazilian universities," Dr. Moore said.

He said it would be possible to provide participants with lessons in the Portuguese language without adding extra costs or a new language department to this University by arranging some sort of language program with Brazilian schools.

HE EXPLAINED that Catholic University has agreed to recognize Bowling Green students as participants in an exchange program without charging them extra fees to attend classes there.

Dr. Moore also hopes to establish an internship in Brazil for business students.

He said Sao Paulo is one of the most rapidly expanding cities in the world and would offer students an excellent chance to observe business operations.

Ten students and two professors from Brazil will be studying and teaching here winter quarter as part of the exchange program. In addition, Dr. Moore has invited the rector at the university in Sao Paulo to visit Bowling Green within the 1971-72 academic year.

big issue

When the wage-price freeze hit the country in July, the key to its success, according to President Nixon, was the voluntary action of all citizens.

President Hollis A. Moore Jr. announced in August that students will find no inflation of costs at the University this fall term.

"We believe our action is in harmony with President Nixon's request for voluntary action to help fight inflation and to restore stable economic conditions in the U.S.," he said.

Early in September Robert McKay, director of student employment said all student pay rates will be frozen for three months in accordance with Nixon's wage and price freeze ruling.

The entire University felt the pinch from the freeze these past few months. Sacrifices in salaries, departmental budgets, supplies, equipment and projects were necessary to comply with the wage-price freeze ruling.

Apparently the athletic department doesn't take the three-month ruling seriously because Athletic Director Dick Young does not consider the alleged violation of the freeze a serious matter.

Young claims the alleged violation "is not a big issue." He is relying on the government to sympathize with the athletic department because it is operating at a loss. Apparently an investigation by the Internal Revenue Service is just the way the old ball bounces in the life of an athletic director.

It seems that other administrators and academic departments have taken the freeze ruling seriously. Maybe they know something Dick Young doesn't know.

another view

Even though the Student Health Center is adhering to its archaic policy of refusing to distribute birth control pills to students, it's good to know there is a place one can go to obtain such services.

The Wood County Family Planning Center provides contraceptives, birth control information and family planning assistance to any woman.

Still operating under a 1969 announcement, the Health Center claims there is no relationship between contraceptive devices and illness or the prevention of illness.

Obviously the state of Ohio thinks differently on the matter because the Wood County Family Planning Center is federally funded through the Ohio State Board of Health.

It is a pity the University Health Center does not conform to the necessity of these services. Nevertheless, it is still good to know there is a local center in town that realizes its obligation to the members of this community.

You'd think I was trying to leave the country to dodge the draft or smuggle narcotics into Baton Rouge, Louisiana, or hijack a plane or cross against the light. All I was doing was trying to find a place to live.

For reasons not worth explaining (but, of course, I will anyway), I wanted to move out of my apartment. My apartment was one of those primeval campus tenements that used to be a Chinese noodle factory but some local developers decided that with a few cardboard walls here and there—mostly here—it would be suitable for student dwelling. So for three years, I dwelled.

SO I PUT AN ad, which I could ill-afford, in the Sunday paper. "Young writer seeks middle-class dwelling..."

At 6:30 Sunday morning the phone rang.

"How young?"

"Fuh?"

"How young? Are you, that is?"

"Oh, I'm 22."

"You're too young to live here," the voice croaked. "And furthermore, don't bother me anymore at 6:30 in the morning, you dirty hippie." Click.

I went back to sleep in my hallway. And an hour later...

"Come right over. Have I got a place for you. Luxurious, like you wouldn't believe. It's just what you want: Old World Charm. A lovely bedroom, a kitchen in which you could eat off the floor. Beautiful green shiny floors and modern doors. And a dishwasher. We're going to evict the fellow who lives there now. You sound like a nice boy" (I hadn't said a word except Hullo) "so come right over."

"WHERE IS THIS place?" I asked. He proceeded to give me my own address. And so it was back to bed. But not for long. For the next forty minutes, the phone didn't stop ringing. So I put on my jockey, a Sunday suit and a tie-dyed tie and started out.

The middle-aged lady and her husband in the pink painted house asked me to sit down. "Can we make you a drink or roll you a joint or anything?" she asked.

"We're interested in getting someone young—someone Hip, Hep and With It, to live here," she said. "We understand the Youth Movement and hope to have some Meaningful Dialogue," she continued. "We're very Now, Relevant and Flowing People. Ernie, my husband, bought a pair of bell bottoms yesterday. Didn't you, Ernie?" Ernie nodded and no place like home

by Rick Mitz

ran into his room to try them on. "So you see, Man, we think we know Where It's At and we think that Where It's At is here." I nodded wondering where what was at.

"May we Rap for awhile?" she asked, smoothing out the wrinkles in her aging mini.

"Will you be having loud and noisy hallucinogenic drug parties?"

"No."

"Oh. But are you an acid rock freak and play it loud all day and all night?"

"No. I'm an opera buff, actually."

"Well. Will you be holding peace rallies and protest marches in and around the area of the house—you know,

Up The System and all that..."

"I don't think so."

"ERNIEEE!" she shouted. "Don't bother putting on your bells for this square. We don't want him here."

And of course there were others. The old red-haired lady who said I could move into her boarding house if I stayed away from her bedroom, the older white-haired lady who said I could move into her boarding house if I shared her bedroom.

And then I found it. Large brick, a real bedroom, wood floors, two blocks from the college Animal Husbandry building—and cheap.

"Say, aren't you Rick Mitz, youthful columnist?" the chipper landlord chirped.

"Yes," I blushed.

"I've read all your columns. Every one." He paused. "We don't want you here."

Well, I've finally moved. It's quite a bit more expensive than my old apartment. And it's quite far from campus. But it does have its charms. It's one of those primeval apartments that used to be an Italian Lasagne factory. It has those pink plastic folding doors and lots of green warped linoleum. And a bedroom in the hallway. And I hang my clothes over the stove. No dishwasher. But it's home.

"Yeah man, I've got a two track mind—one track gets me there and one gets me back."

news Letters

failed to see appreciation

In the nine years that I have been a small part of this campus scene as an employee and have avidly read The BG News, there have been a few times when I felt I should write a letter to the Editor and state my views either in support of or in opposition to any given issue, but with the passing of time, my thoughts would become suppressed and eventually the whole idea would fade away into oblivion. Never have I had a stronger urge to write such a letter than I experience now since I read the November 11 edition of the paper and I refer to the article, "Questions We Should Ask" written by Staff Reporter, Terry Cochran.

Immediately upon reading it, I became very indignant at the negative references made in regards to various departments and their personnel who render myriads of services essential to this campus community. The entire article is most insulting and degrading, to say the least, in my opinion.

She felt and asked me to read the article again in the light of praise and appreciation and she was sure I'd feel much better about the whole thing. Well, I did read it again and again and again and I yet fail to see the above mentioned attributes there in any sense of the word.

It is very difficult for me to read in words of praise or respect when the author wonders if "equally proportioned" committees could be set up to study the possibilities of a "mad cook" poisoning the food and killing a thousand plus of our students.

Where is the inference of valuable merit, respect, or appreciation, when he speaks of possible "screening committees" in preventing the hiring of such personnel as "midnight characters out of Spanish novels" or in the way he refers to wild and perhaps irresponsible or careless maintenance men?

As I reached the last column in the article and I once again read the words, "you begin to see that the possibilities of strange and potentially subversive activities are nearly unlimited" on campus, I quickly recalled that I had been admonished to read the entire article in the light of appreciation and praise for all departments and personnel therein for their services.

Striving to keep my letter as brief as possible and yet to express my honest evaluation of the original letter, I would sincerely hope that Mr. Cochran will soon come forth with another article wherein he will fully explain what he was really saying when he wrote this one!

Many people, personnel of several departments on this campus including the "suspected" Mr. Cobb and his "ladies in pastels" are, without doubt, anxiously awaiting your response as you give your clear-cut explanation of the entire theme of the article in question; of this I am quite sure.

student teaching

For five years now student teachers from Bowling Green State University have been coming to the Reading Community Schools for their intern experience. This arrangement will end with the fall quarter because of the lack of campus supervision due to budget problems.

I am writing to express to the University community, students and faculty our deep appreciation for the contributions which Bowling Green State University student teachers have made to our school and community. Over the years a number of these young people have distinguished themselves and their university through their activities in and out of the classroom.

Scarcely a week passes during which we fail to hear favorable words spoken about Bowling Green students. Our teachers, students and community people will miss them deeply.

Fire Dept. study under way

Mayor F. Gus Skibbie told Bowling Green City Council Monday night he will complete a detailed study of the city Fire Department before he leaves office in January.

The mayor said he has already concluded the size of the department should be increased by at least two and perhaps five men, depending on the development of the east-side fire station.

The number of additional men the mayor will recommend in his final report will also be based on whether or not the city creates a "fire prevention inspector" post.

"Whenever possible we want to assign a member of a shift to fire prevention activity for a part of the day if the expansion is made," the mayor said.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

presently is composed of three platoons, one with six members and two with five members. Each platoon works a 24-hour on duty, 48 hour off-duty shift.

The mayor also said little progress has been made in recent weeks with surrounding cities in establishing mutual police aid pacts.

Signed contracts for mutual police aid have been made with Perrysburg and Bellevue.

However, he said he had contacted 20 area communities with respect to the police aid pacts and only six have expressed positive reactions; two have expressed negative reactions and the rest have not replied.

Communities expressing a positive reaction but who have failed to return signed contracts are Fostoria, Maumee, Waterville and Oregon.

SEVERAL STUDENTS present at the meeting voiced complaints about telephone service in the city and differential deposit rates charged to telephone subscribers.

Students said rates differed depending upon the number of long distance telephone calls made, the number of people in an apartment and the age or occupation of persons wanting phone service.

On November 1, the mayor told council that The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) would send a team of investigators to inspect the Bowling Green office of Northern Ohio Telephone and that a report of the inspection would be sent to the mayor when it was completed.

"I asked them to hold public hearings while they were here, but they said it was not necessary," Mayor Skibbie said.

He referred the students to PUCO if they wished to register formal complaints.

Reapportionment legal?

YOUNGSTOWN (AP)- The first legal challenge to Gov. John J. Gilligan's legislative reapportionment plan for the next decade was filed in U.S. District Court yesterday.

It came from a Democrat, Samuel J. Jordan, a suburban Austintown Township tavern owner.

Jordan's suit, filed by Atty. Albert Ortenzie, contends the reapportionment plan contains discrepancies in population and violates the U.S. Supreme Court's "one-man, one vote" edict.

The apportionment board, controlled 3-2 by Democrats, was named defendant along with the Mahoning County Board of Elections.

The apportionment board rammed the Gilligan plan through on Sept. 30. Gilligan was board chairman. Republicans had been expected to quickly challenge the plan in court but so far have failed to do so.

Speculation around the Statehouse in Columbus was that the GOP planned to wait until near the Feb. 2, 1972 filing deadline to bring the action.

A court could extend the deadline, draw its own plan, or order the present boundaries left intact until the issue is settled.

All 99 Ohio House seats and 17 Senate seats will be up for election next year. The apportionment board is charged with redrawing legislative boundaries every 10 years, based on the last census.

Jordan's suit seeks injunctive relief to block next year's elections and asks a three-judge court to be convened to order a new and acceptable apportionment plan.

Another Republican approach discussed was the possibility of not filing any suit and let Secretary of State Ted W. Brown refuse candidate petitions on the basis of errors in the Gilligan plan.

Court to hear spying appeal

WASHINGTON (AP)- The Supreme Court gave the government a chance yesterday to head off a full-dress hearing into Army surveillance of civilians.

The court agreed to consider an appeal by the Justice Department aimed at suits by civilians who object to surveillance but cannot prove that they were hurt by it.

The justices will consider the appeal later in the term. This delays, and may ultimately prevent, a spying hearing ordered last April by the U.S. Circuit Court for the District of Columbia.

At issue is a suit filed last year by the American Civil Liberties Union in behalf of the Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors and individuals who felt they had been spied upon.

The suit was dismissed by U.S. Dist. Court Judge George L. Hart Jr., but he was reversed by the Circuit Court, which ordered him to find out whether Army surveillance was "unrelated" to the Army's mission "as defined by the Constitution."

The Justice Department's appeal, filed in August, doubted that the Constitution gives federal courts authority to hold such hearings.

The suit, the department argued, offers no evidence that surveillance has caused any injury to those who filed it. In effect, the department said, the suit seeks an "advisory" opinion on "indefinite and abstract assertions."

The Supreme Court could kill the suit if it decides to overrule the Circuit Court.

Civil rights efforts lag, report says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nixon administration has failed to take a firm and continuing interest in the enforcement of civil rights laws, the Civil Rights Commission said in a report released yesterday.

In addition, the commission said, only a few federal agencies have made any real effort to upgrade the hiring or promotion of blacks, Indians, orientals or Spanish-speaking Americans.

A bulky 217-page report entitled, "The Federal Civil Rights Enforcement Effort: One Year Later," concluded: "Unless the bureaucracy is given to understand that civil rights is a matter of personal concern to the President, it is unlikely to alter the status quo."

THE COMMISSION cited remarks on various civil rights issues by President Nixon over the past several months as doing little to provide optimism for minorities.

The President has opposed enforced busing to achieve integration and has said he is against an active federal role in the courts to integrate the suburbs.

"The net effect of the President's statements has not been to provide a clear policy direction necessary to encourage the federal bureaucracy to step up its efforts to enforce civil rights laws," the report said.

L.A. mayor seeks office

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP)—Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty said yesterday he will seek the Democratic party's nomination for president and begin his campaign in New Hampshire's earliest-in-the-nation primary.

In a statement released by his headquarters in Manchester, Yorty said his campaign "is already well under way in New Hampshire."

The California primary, he added, "will climax our campaign" and "we will be selective" about races in other primary states.

Yorty becomes the second Democrat formally seeking the party's nomination in the New Hampshire race.

SEN. GEORGE McGovern of South Dakota made his announcement several months ago. Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine is expected to announce his candidacy around the first of the year.

Political observers also say Washington Sen. Henry Jackson may jump into the sweepstakes.

BSU sets seminar on teaching

A seminar on teaching in the black community will be held by the University Black Student Union (BSU) tomorrow in 115 Education Bldg. at 6:30 p.m.

Black teachers and students from Toledo will speak, and a question and answer period will follow. The program has been set up for all education majors planning to teach in the inner-city schools. Everyone is invited to attend.

Dec. grads caps, gowns

Paul D. Shepherd, manager of the University Bookstore, has urged that all candidates for December graduation place their orders for cap and gown immediately if they have not already done so.

Orders are being taken in the Bookstore in the Student Services Bldg. No cash is needed at the time the measurements are taken.

SS reform considered

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House is considering a proposed revision in the Social Security accounting system which could bring an election-year bonanza to taxpayers as well as pensioners.

This was disclosed yesterday by Elliot Richardson, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who told newsmen at the White House: "We think the recommendation is sound and does make sense."

Basically the proposal would place the Social Security system on a pay-as-you-go basis and require the trust fund to carry only a one-year reserve.

BY SWITCHING to this less-conservative actuarial accounting system, officials said sharp hikes in payroll tax rates could be postponed for decades, and money could become available to increase monthly payments to the estimated 26 million Social Security beneficiaries.

The change, which would require congressional approval, was recommended last spring by a 15-member advisory council which studies the Social Security system every four years.

'Issue '71' spotlights black views

Three black students will discuss black problems and black progress tonight on WBGU-FM.

The program, "Issue '71," will also be used to "clear up some of the charges made by white power advocate Raymond Russell Veh on WBGU two weeks ago," said panel member Kedron Legree.

Veh's appearance was part of a sequence of programs begun last year designed to demonstrate the nature and origin of extremist views, according to station manager Terry Gottschalk. Speakers representing extremes of the ideological spectrum are invited to appear on the show.

Legree said programs and projects for the benefit of black students will also be discussed and that phone calls will be accepted during the program.

The WBGU-FM number is 2-2826.

Terrorist treatment questioned

LONDON (AP) - The British government has ordered a review of the way suspected Irish terrorists are detained and questioned after an inquiry commission found some evidence of physical ill-treatment in Northern Ireland.

The commission, in a 72-page report to Parliament yesterday, cleared British troops and security police in Northern Ireland of charges that they had tortured and brainwashed captured gunmen from the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

But it upheld charges from released prisoners that during interrogations they were forced to stand spread-eagled against walls for four to six hours at a time, that their heads had been covered with black hoods, that they had been subjected to loud hissing noises, denied sleep and put on bread-and-water diets.

Grad Senate meets today

The Graduate Student Senate will meet in the Faculty Lounge, Union, today at 2 p.m.

The agenda includes a discussion of the necessity to reorient the sociology and function of the University Library and the Health Center. Publication of subsequent issues of the Graduate Student Survival Handbook will also be discussed.

Meetings of the Senate are open to all University graduate students.

Birth control aid available

STADIUM PLAZA

The clinic, which opened in July, is federally funded through the Ohio State Board of Health. Catherine Edwards, director of nursing, said.

The services of the clinic are twofold—birth control and assistance in spacing the birth of children in a family, she said.

Although the service is designed to aid people on low-income levels, facilities are open to anyone in the community, including college students 18 and over.

"We offer all kinds of contraceptives including the pill, and social and medical counseling. We also give complete physicals, treat venereal disease and minor infections," she said.

THE CLINIC does not offer abortion counseling, but refers patients to other agencies. Vasectomies are offered for those unable to afford the operation otherwise. The cost would normally run from $75-$100.

Although pregnancy tests are given, Ms. Edwards urged students to have the test at the University Health Center.

"We can't turn students away and if they want to have the test done here—fine, but we don't believe we should duplicate services offered by the University," she said.

Ms. Edwards said any woman planning marriage should contact her personal physician or Family Planning at least two months before her wedding if she plans to take the pill. This insures that she can begin taking it soon enough for it to become effective.

The staff, a gynecologist two nurses, a licensed practical nurse and a health aid, are available by appointment on Wednesday evenings.

MS. EDWARDS said there is a two-week waiting list, but the clinic will take emergency cases. Foam and condoms are given to those on the list.

Although appointments are preferred, Ms. Edwards said staff members are available for counseling and information during regular Board of Health hours, 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m., or by calling 353-5081.

Firelands sets registration

The Firelands campus of the University has announced registration plans for the winter quarter, 1972.

Classes will begin Monday, January 3, with 102 freshman and sophomore courses and 16 junior, senior and graduate courses appearing on the schedule.

Open registration began yesterday. Advisers from the University's three colleges will be available to assist students and prospective students with course selections.

REGISTRATIONS WILL be processed weekdays through December 31 from 9-10:30 a.m. and 2-3:30 p.m. Although academic advisers will not be present at those times, assistance is available from the Student Services Office for students who may have questions about any phase of college enrollment.

A special advising program has been scheduled for Tuesday, November 30, at 5 p.m. Again, advisers from the main campus will be on hand to assist those with special questions.

Director of Student Services, Robert B. Classen, has requested that all prospective students contact Firelands at their earliest convenience to assure admission approval.

Applications from new freshmen and transfers must be submitted by December 1. Unclassified and transient students may enroll past that deadline, though eligibility for these types of enrollment is more restricted. Prospective students should contact Firelands Student Services Office for complete details.

On stage

Irene Molloy (Prudy Miller), Horace Vandergelder (E.J. Steele) and Dolly Levi (Mary Carolyn Russo) meet in Mrs. Molloy's hat shop in New York City in this scene from "The Matchmaker" which opens tonight in the Main Auditorium at 8 p.m.

'The Matchmaker' Clothes aid actors

By Gale Bogle
Entertainment Editor

A corset, bustle and long skirt will help Mary Carolyn Russo become Dolly Levi as "The Matchmaker" opens tonight.

Ms. Russo said costumes help her get into the character by making her adapt physically to the part.

All the women in the cast started wearing corsets and long skirts immediately so they could learn to stand and sit in them on stage, she said.

According to Ms. Russo, her own costume takes about half an hour to put on and is very heavy because of all the petticoats she wears.

can and she was especially hoping to become Mrs. Levi because "it's a challenging role."

SHE ALSO SAID she wanted to work for Dr. Lee Miesle, professor of speech, who she thinks is a fine director who knows what he wants to get out of an actor and how to guide the performers.

The cast is currently in its fifth week of rehearsing six days a week which doesn't leave much time to do anything else.

Ms. Russo, who is a teaching fellow, said the play has to become everything and she had to prepare for everything else in her life before rehearsals started.

She said this was a major problem she had encountered in educational theater because she is divided between teaching and performing and she really needs to concentrate only on the play when she is performing.

There is a great value in educational theater because the chances to get regular work are limited, Ms. Russo said.

Educational theater offers a great freedom because the subsidization from the University allows classics such as Hamlet to be performed, she said.

Ms. Russo said educational theater allows students to take time to grow as actors and can serve as a stepping stone for the student who wants to go professional later.

The play will be performed in the Main Auditorium because it can afford to be done there, although the actors are up against the great distance between the stage and the audience, she said.

MAIN AUDITORIUM requires much bigger facial expressions and forces the actors to practically yell in each others ears to be heard in the house, according to Ms. Russo.

Ms. Russo said the short runs of plays at the University always result in a tremendous let down for her. By closing night the ensemble has really started to jell on stage and the play has to close.

"Even with all the problems, if there were try-outs the Monday after a Sunday closing, I would be back at try-outs," Ms. Russo said.

Elephant investigation shows sizeable dilemma

By Patty Bailey
Staff Reporter

I want to ride an elephant. I've always wanted to ride an elephant.

And with the Hanneford Circus coming this Saturday I figure this is my big chance.

I mean, if they're bringing a whole herd of elephants with them they must have one rather little one that I could take a spin on once around the parking lot.

Then I happened to mention my plan to the BG News office.

"You want to do what?" After I answered the question, our managing editor shrugged it off with one of his "here she goes again" looks and told me to go do a circus story and leave him alone. As I walked away I heard him mumbling, "Last week she wanted to interview Freddy Falcon."

IN THE COURSE of researching my circus story I came across the rather interesting fact that the circus will perform in Memorial Hall.

How do you fit a herd of elephants into Memorial Hall?

When I asked, I was told the circus people had assured the University that they could bring the elephants in through the back doors of Anderson Arena.

Even though I'm sure the circus people know what they're doing, it's unbelievable to me that they could fit an elephant through a normal-sized double doorway. I mean, an elephant is a big animal.

I was wondering out loud to myself how the feat was going to be accomplished when some BG News staff members interrupted my one-sided conversation to make a few suggestions.

"Maybe they'll just tell them to skootch," our copy editor suggested.

"Skootch? You can't tell an elephant to skootch!" "A circus elephant you can tell to skootch," she stated firmly.

Someone else had a different solution.

"Maybe they'll tie roller skates to their knees and just roll them in."

"Maybe the crowd will have to go outside to see the elephant act."

"Maybe they have miniature elephants."

I TOOK MATTERS firmly in hand and stated flat out in the Student Activities Office that I wanted to know exactly how they planned to get those animals in the building. The answer was scary.

The center post of the double doorway into Anderson Arena has to be removed. Then the elephant trainer just makes his beasts get down on their knees and crawl into the arena.

I asked, what if the post isn't removable? The man answering my questions said there was another doorway leading into Anderson under the bleachers.

This doorway doesn't have a post and part of the bleachers in front of it can be removed. He muttered something about having the elephants crawl under the rest of the bleachers.

Swell, and what if Elly decides to stand up while making her entrance? Remind me not to sit on that side of the arena.

THAT SAME night back in my room in the dormitory I worried over whether or not the elephant herd could fit into Memorial Hall. Finally I gave up and grabbing my coat from the closet, decided to walk over and see for myself.

The back side of Anderson Arena was well-lighted and I quickly paced off the width of the doors. It took seven of my feet to get from side to side. I couldn't measure the height accurately but it couldn't be over six or seven feet.

Instead of going back to my room I stopped at the room of a friend.

"Would you measure my feet please?" I asked her.

"What?" "Measure my feet," I ordered, sticking one of them in her face. Obediently she got out a ruler and measured my feet.

"Almost nine inches." Since I never was really good at math that did nothing to explain whether or not the elephants would fit into the arena. So I paced off seven of my feet across the floor and had her measure that.

"Five feet, seven inches. That's pretty big."

"For an elephant?"

"Well...stand there and let me see."

"What do you mean, stand there and let me see?"

"I meant so I could measure how wide the space for the elephant is, Dumbo!"

"Dumbo?"

THERE'S ANOTHER interesting aspect of this elephant business. They come in semi-trucks.

And everyone knows you can't keep a herd of elephants in a semi-truck all day. So where will they go? The field behind Memorial Hall, of course.

I hope no one makes any really loud noises on Saturday. Could you just see Bowling Green wiped out by an elephant stampede?

Spikers count on experience

By Hal Arnold

In its first season of league play last year the Bowling Green Volleyball Club captured the title as the most successful starting club in the Midwestern Intercollegiate Volleyball Association.

This season the MIVA has expanded to seven schools and BG has the depth and experience, sorely lacking last year, to throw against the powerhouse teams of Ball State and Ohio State.

Missing this season will be head coach Doug Beal, former U.S. National team member and a participant in the 1970 World Championships, whose organizational skill and drive sparked the BG club into existence.

BEAL WILL complete his graduate studies in December, leaving a vacancy the HPE Department hopes to fill with a graduate assistant experienced in collegiate volleyball.

Among key players returning for their second year are Bill Hopewell, Larry Benecke, Jim Wolfe, Randy Schmidt, Craig Heckman, Rod Ebright, Steve Leader and Randy Borden.

According to Beal, Hopewell, a 5'10" senior, will provide stability and leadership in a setting and serving capacity. Schmidt, a 6'3" sophomore, experienced difficulty last year in switching from high school basketball to volleyball but should make the most of his extremely fast moves.

BENECKE, A 6'1" sophomore, is much stronger this year, and is an outstanding spiker and very quick on the net. Benecke could be the top sophomore in the MIVA this year.

Wolfe, a 5'10" sophomore, has potential as a setter and has fast wrists and arm-swing. Heckman, a 6' junior and Ebright, a 5'11" sophomore, were slow in developing their volleyball skills but have experience and are more natural in their game this year.

In the MIVA Beal predicted BG shouldn't finish lower than fourth and could finish as high as second with a possible shot at the top.

"BALL STATE was definitely hurt by graduation when they lost three out of their four best hitters," said

Beal. "Last year they were third in the nationals behind UCLA and UC of Santa Barbara, but this year will be a different story."

"Indiana Tech lacks depth this season because of graduation, but OSU lost only one player, giving them great potential this year," he continued. "George Williams

College has 6'2" Jerry Angle who has open (club league) experience and could be the best in the league."

"Earlham College and Indiana University are both weak this year," he said. "If we can beat Indiana U., Indiana Tech and Earlham, we'll give the top teams a rough go. I think BG will surprise the league. As far as individual players, Benecke could be the first sophomore to make all-league at the end of the season."

There will be an organizational meeting Nov. 29 at 202 Memorial Hall at 8 p.m. for all club members and anyone interested in playing for the club this year.

Good equipment service a must

By George O'Neal

In order for an athletic team to participate, it has to be well-equipped, not only in practice sessions but also in games.

Bowling Green fields varsity teams in football, basketball, baseball, hockey, wrestling, soccer, cross country, lacrosse and track, to name a few, and all these teams require a good deal of equipment.

The job of equipping these teams falls on the able shoulders of Glenn Sharp and his assistant, Don Woods.

"SHARPIE" HAS been head equipment manager at Bowling Green for 16 years. Before coming to BG, he spent six years in the army, participating in World War II, then was in the active reserves for 19 years. He also sold sporting goods and did carpentry work and cabinet-making.

"We are responsible for getting the athletes on the field, in games and practices," said Sharp. "During football season, 75 players receive all their equipment in 20 minutes. The equipment is then turned in every day after practice and washed."

When extra equipment is needed, the specific items or materials that are needed are bid upon by several companies, to keep costs down.

WHEN AWAY GAMES are played, the equipment is either hauled separately in a truck, which is what is done for conference football games, or it goes directly with the team. This was the case for the Texas-Arlington game

Booters have four all-stars

Four Falcons soccer seniors have been named to play in the 1971 North-South senior all-star game.

Fullbacks Bob Gofus and Howy Siegel and halfbacks Don Gable and Ivan Mader were named to the North squad.

The game will be played Sunday at Baldwin-Wallace College on an Astro-Turf surface. BG coach Mickey Cochrane will assist head coach Bill Killen of Akron in coaching the North.

THE TOP 18 players from the North-South game will be selected to play in an Indiana-Ohio all-star game that will be played Dec. 4 at Wright State.

The Ohio North-South game is in its third year, and each year the Falcons have been represented by at least three players.

In another soccer note, two Bowling Green season foes have been named to participate in the 1971 NCAA soccer tournament.

Ohio University and Akron will join eight-time champion St. Louis and Southern Illinois in the Midwest eliminations.

ST. LOUIS, 12-0, is top-seeded and will face fourth-seeded Ohio University, 10-1-1, in the second game of a doubleheader Saturday, Nov.

27, at Edwardsville, Ill. In the first game, second-seeded Southern Illinois, 9-1-1, will take on third-ranked Akron, 9-2-3.

The St. Louis-Ohio University victor will be the host for the Midwest finals the week of Nov. 30. The winner advances to the national semifinals Dec. 28 at the Orange Bowl in Miami.

Lacrosse meet

All lacrosse players interested in playing in the 1972 season are to report to a meeting tomorrow at 7 p.m. in 300 Moseley Hall.

Ice chips Personable Amo praises pucksters

By Fred R. Ortilp
Assistant Sports Editor

If Michigan State hockey mentor Amo Bessone's coaching techniques are on a parallel with his personality, the Spartans should be in for another excellent season.

The easy-going Amo, who led the Spartans to a 19-12 record, good for a seventh-in-the-nation ranking last season, kicked off the 1971-72 campaign with a pair of impressive 5-2 and 8-3 victories over Bowling Green last weekend.

Amo's a class guy.

WHILE THE FALCONS were turning in one of their poorer efforts in Friday's 5-2 outing, Bessone was handling out plaudits.

"They've (BG) got a good sound team," he said. "We were fortunate to win considering all the penalties we had. Vivian (Falcons coach Jack Vivian) has done a good job of recruiting," he continued. "We expected a hard game."

Amo even went as far as to say the Falcons could compete with several teams in the Western Conference, the loop in which Michigan State is picked to finish third.

"THEY'RE AS GOOD as some teams in our league," he said. "and you'd figure they'd improve over the course of the season and give a lot of people fits."

Meanwhile, Falcon coach Jack Vivian cringes at the thought of facing a Michigan State in almost every league battle.

"If we played in the Western Conference, that's what we'd be up against every week," said Vivian, shaking his head. "Next week Michigan State will go to Minnesota and get killed."

"BUT IF YOU box and get hit in the nose, you fight back," said Vivian. "That's why I got the schedule I did."

A lot can be said about the fan support the Falcons get at home. Call them loud and vicious, but call them loyal.

Bessone got more than his share of taunts and epithets from the fans around the Michigan State bench last weekend.

When asked about it, he said he thought it was great.

"They do a great job, don't they?" he asked, chomping on a cigar after Friday's win. "They make a lot of noise; that's what they're here for."

DID THE FANS affect the Spartans much?

"No, they didn't affect the team at all," scoffed Amo. "They (the players) can't concentrate on the game if they're worried about the fans."

That was more than apparent Saturday after the Falcons bucketed two quick goals within the initial three minutes of the game. The crowd reaction was maddening, enough to make any team panic. But not the Spartans. They methodically whittled away at the Falcons and won easily.

Speaking of fans, you can't blame Vivian for showing concern when his team goes on the road. Going from the friendly confines of the Ice Arena to foreign ground can and has shown Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde effects on the Falcons. They were but 4-10-1 last season away from home.

YOU MIGHT HAVE noticed the new derby Vivian is wearing at the games now. "It was a good luck charm from my wife. Besides I'm developing a cold spot up there," admitted the balding mentor. "I've seen other coaches wearing hats and I think it looks better. I'll wear this one from now on."

Vivian promised a few changes after the two losses to Michigan State. And Monday in practice the changes were apparent.

The Brian Williams-Gerry Bradbury-Pete Badour line, which scored a heady 51 goals last season, was missing Williams who switched places with Gord McCosh on the McCosh-Steve Ball-Ted Sator line.

ON THAT FIRST line McCosh was centering and Bradbury, last season's leading scorer, moved from center to left wing. Vivian's looking for a little more scoring punch.

Speaking of McCosh, the Ajax, Ont., native was benched during the second period Saturday because he's not playing as well as Vivian would like.

About the only thing Vivian was pleased with last weekend was the "mini" line of Mike Bartley, Ron Wise and Bobby Watson.

"THOSE GUYS are out working before practice and after practice," Vivian said. "They work together and they are together when they're on the ice. If I only had three lines like that..." They accounted for three goals and four assists in the series.

Glen Shinton is still suffering chest spasms after smashing into the boards in the Ryerson series. The Falcon captain's absence Saturday was felt on the back lines. He should be ready for Western Ontario this weekend.

Falcons goaltender Terry Miskolci had to leave Saturday's game midway through the third period after catching a puck just above his knee in the second period.

HE REFUSED TO believe the Spartans were a better team. "I still think we have a better team than them," he said after Saturday's loss. "Their first four goals were deflections. They just got the breaks and we didn't."

Defenseman Chuck Gyles was practicing Monday after he left prematurely Saturday with a back injury.

This weekend the Falcons host Western Ontario, a team that ruined their opener last season, 3-2 in overtime. The following evening the Falcons eked out a 7-6 win. That's indicative of how these two teams skate.

Intramural notes

Entries for three-man basketball and co-ed volleyball are due Nov. 23. Entries are available from fraternity and resident hall athletic chairmen.

A goal by Bill Ehman was the only score as Beta Theta Pi retained its fraternity title for another year by defeating Phi Delta Theta, 1-0.

The Foreign Bodies bombed The Team, 5-0, on four goals by Tim Davig. It was Anderson's second straight resident hall soccer title.

Kappa Sigma dominated the fraternity football playoffs by winning both "A and B" divisions. The "A" team stopped the defending champions, Sigma Phi Epsilon, 26-21, while the "B" team routed the Sigma Phi Epsilon "B" team, 26-6.

The two teams will meet today to determine the 1971 fraternity champions. In the resident hall division, the Derelicts of Rodgers meets The Thundering Herd of Offenbauer West for the title while The Machine and Toad's Bombers meet for the off-campus crown.
